Exciting News from KPA in December

Here's the December edition of the KPA e-NEWS, a regular e-newsletter, to enhance communication about psychology across the state. Numerous opportunities exist in 2015 for meeting your New Year's resolutions of financial security, increasing knowledge, enhancing organization, planning, and practice opportunities, and cultivating new personal and professional relationships. What follows is a sampling of psychology-related news and opportunities across the Commonwealth. Check out the column on the left for upcoming KPA Social and CE events, meetings, Kentucky Currents (member news items), and more. Update from KPA Executive Director

by Lisa Willner, Ph.D., KPA Executive Director

2014 KPA Highlights

KPA is poised to end 2014 in the black, with membership numbers holding steady, and a successful convention and year of richly varied and evidence-based continuing education programming behind us. In addition to live CE events, 2014 brought us Season Two of our popular Attachment webinar series, now available through the UK HealthCare's CE Central website. Because of KPA's partnership with CE Central, the webinars are now accredited for medical CE as well as for psychology and other mental health professions.

In advocacy news, 2014 was a capacity-building year for lobbying for the science and practice of psychology, as we branched out to contract with McCarthy Strategic Solutions. Thanks in large parts to grassroots advocacy efforts by KPA members, 2014 marked the first year that privately practicing psychologists were eligible to provide services through Medicaid. KPA leaders participated in advocacy training, stepped up political giving, and hosted KPA's first annual Legislative Day. (I hope you will join us in Frankfort on February 24th for KPA's next Legislative Day.) If you have not already done so, I invite you to complete the PAC Survey, and to view the survey results that have been tallied to date.

I am delighted to announce that the Kentucky Psychological Association was awarded a Legislative Grant in the amount of $10,000 from the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Practice (CAPP) of the American Psychological Association Practice Organization (APAPO). The awarded CAPP funds are to help support lobbyist services and grassroots activities as they address multiple issues affecting psychologists and the practice of MBSR is a challenging 8-week life-enrichment program combining a variety of formal and informal meditation practices with mindful movement and other supports for the cultivation of a healthy, low-stress lifestyle. Conducted in a small group format, emotional healing and spiritual growth are often among the rich fruits of this experiential training. Come learn why Mindfulness is growing so rapidly in popularity, what 30 years of clinical research is revealing about the effectiveness of MBSR with a variety of clinical populations, and how you can integrate Mindfulness into your personal life and professional practice. The APAPO CAPP grant is a rewarding finish to a very successful and productive year for KPA on numerous fronts. I look forward to continuing our work together on behalf of our profession in 2015, and I wish you a happy, healthy, and prosperous New Year.

Save the Date: KPA 2015 Annual Conference – November 5-7 in Lexington

Many thanks to all who participated in making KPA's 2014 Conference "Psychologists as Collaborators: Partnering to provide comprehensive care" such a tremendous success. There were many outstanding speakers and workshops and lots of great networking opportunities as we came together for our annual "family reunion". A special thank you to Convention Co-chairs, Dr. Lisa Powell and Dr. Laurie Grimes, the entire 2014 Convention Committee, and all of our wonderful volunteer presenters!

We'll be back in Lexington in 2015 for what promises to be yet another wonderful gathering. Save the dates: Nov 5-7 at the Griffin Gate Marriott Resort. In the meantime, click on the Convention homepage for a overview the this past year's convention highlights.

The Harris Family: A Legacy of Service to Kentucky Psychology by David Susman, Ph.D. and Art Nonneman, Ph.D.

The Kentucky psychology community was saddened by the news of the death of Patricia McNamee Harris on August 18, 2014. Pat, as she was known to friends and family, was born on July 10, 1929 in Evanston, IL. She graduated from Duke University in 1951 with a B.A. degree in History. While at Duke, she was selected as one of the seven most outstanding senior women for the White Duchy Honorary, and for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Her principal positions of employment included Civil Service appointments at the Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, DC and the Naval Air Station in Pensacola, Florida.

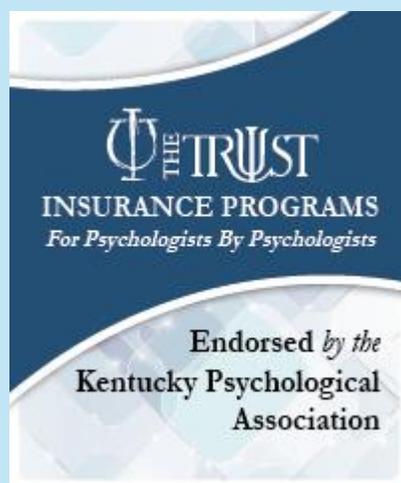

In 1953, Pat married Jesse G. Harris, Jr. After Jesse completed his PhD in Clinical Psychology at Duke in 1955, the couple moved to Lexington, KY in 1960 to begin their association with the University of Kentucky. Jesse was a Professor and former Chair of the Psychology Department in the College of Arts and Sciences from 1960 until his death in 1988. He was also a past President of the Kentucky Psychological Association and a member of the Kentucky Board of Examiners of Psychology. Following his death, the UK Psychology Department honored him by naming the training center for clinical psychology doctoral students the Jesse G. Harris, Jr. Psychological Services Center. Jesse was an inaugural inductee into the KPA Psychology Hall of Fame in 2007. Pat Harris served as a staff assistant in the UK Philosophy Department from 1976 to 1986. She and Jesse were members of Lexington's Second Presbyterian Church. Pat was also active in a number of groups including Chapter J of the PEO sisterhood, and the University of Kentucky Women's Club. She was a University of Kentucky Fellow, and an active participant in the Jesse G Harris, KPA Receives APAPO CAPP Grant!

KPA is honored to have received a $10,000 grant from the Committee for the Advance of Professional Practice of the American Psychological Association Practice Organization (APAPO). APAPO's Legislative CAPP Grants are made possible from funds collected through the practice assessment of licensed psychologists, and are awarded in the spirit of resource sharing to support legislative efforts aimed at promoting the practice of psychology. Your ongoing support of APAPO through payment of your practice assessments allows the CAPP to continue its good and necessary work on behalf of psychological practice. KPA's leadership is honored to have the opportunity to partner with the APAPO Practice Directorate and CAPP as together we face the challenges of assuring the availability of psychological services in the changing health care landscape.

relief to our ears. After an incredibly expensive and rancorous campaign season for our US Senator position, Mitch McConnell will remain in office – as will all six of our US House members. At the state level, the much-anticipated take-over of the Kentucky House by the Republicans did not materialize, with the Democrats holding their 4-seat majority. The Republicans gained a seat in the Kentucky Senate.* There are 11 new House members and 6 new Senators! With defeats of incumbents and retirements, there will be changes in the leadership of both chambers, both parties. This is important to us, as it is the majority leadership teams in the House and in the Senate that name committee chairs, make assignments and control the flow of legislation!

The 2015 Kentucky General Assembly session is a "short" (30-day) one. It convenes for four days of pomp and organization on January 6th and then will recess until "real" business is conducted, beginning on February 3rd and ending on March 24th. Despite the state's pension crisis which threatens the sustainability of the CMHCs, public health departments, and the teacher retirement systems, it is not clear that legislators will take significant action in the session on this issue. Enacting tax or revenue measures requires a "super majority" vote in each chamber, which will likely be difficult to achieve. There appears to be agreement on trying to address the state's growing heroin problem – but not consensus on how to do it; the debate will be on treatment vs. punishment. Despite Kentucky's recognition as a leader in implementing the Affordable Care Act (ACA) with our state-based Health Benefits Exchange (kynect) and expansion of Medicaid, there will likely be legislation in the Senate to undo both of these initiatives. There does appear to be a growing consensus around passing a comprehensive statewide smoke-free law.

KPA's 2015 legislative priorities – adopted by the Board in mid-December – focus on revising the existing "Duty to Warn" statute to clarify that it applies to individuals seen in an outpatient setting, inclusion of psychologists and other mental health professionals in providing treatment to minors, and protection of psychology's scope of practice from intrusion by other practitioners. Because of the health implications of second-hand smoke and psychologists' involvement in smoking cessation, KPA is strongly supporting the statewide smoking ban legislation. KPA has also endorsed the legislative agenda of the KY Mental Health Coalition which includes a number of behavioral health, human services, domestic violence and social justice bills. (www.kpa.org)

Thank You From the Bottom of My Heart!

by Sheila A. Schuster, Ph.D.

In 2000, KPA honored me with a wonderful retirement party when I stepped down after 11 years as the Executive Director. At this year's convention, an almost-retirement party was held for me...I say "almost" because I am continuing in my present KPA roles for another session. The party was fabulous and confirmed my belief that no one throws a better party than Carol Held and her crew! In fact, I wanted to keep working so I could have another party.

Apparently, I have a few foibles which were discovered and gently roasted by Nancy Gordon Moore, Don Ralph, Mike Nichols, David Hanna, David Susman, and Liz McKune. And what a surprise when my son, David, presented a fantastic painting of one of my Capitol Rotunda advocacy rallies, commissioned by KPA. Thank you from the bottom of my heart for this warm, fun evening, full of good friends!

And thanks for being a great partner with me in building the association, and advocating for psychology and for the folks that we serve. For more than 40 years, KPA has provided me with roots and wings. KPA established the foundation...allowing me to build coalitions and to "see the big picture" and then, gave me the support and encouragement to take action. It has been a tremendous partnership from the beginning. Thank you!

Statement of APA Board of Directors: Outside Counsel to Conduct Independent Review of James Risen Allegation forwarded by David T. Susman, Ph.D., APA Council Representative

(Washington, DC) — The American Psychological Association (APA) Board of Directors has reviewed the allegation in James Risen's book, Pay Any Price: Greed, Power and Endless War, that APA colluded with the Bush administration to support torture during the war on terror. Specifically, Risen alleges that APA supported the development and implementation of “enhanced” interrogation techniques that constituted torture and was complicit with the CIA and U.S. military to this end.

We believe that APA’s October 16th statement (<http://www.apa.org/news/press/response/risen-book.aspx>) refuting Risen’s assertion was a fair and accurate response. However, the allegation made by Mr. Risen is highly charged and very serious. His book has created confusion for the public and APA members. This confusion, coupled with the seriousness of the allegation, requires a definitive, independent and objective review of the allegation and all relevant evidence.

Toward that end, and to fulfill its values of transparency and integrity, the APA Board has authorized the engagement of David Hoffman of the law firm Sidley Austin to conduct an independent review of whether there is any factual support for the assertion that APA engaged in activity that would constitute collusion with the Bush administration to promote, support or facilitate the use of enhanced interrogation techniques by the United States in the war on terror.

The engagement of the independent reviewer will be coordinated by a special committee consisting of three members of the APA Board of Directors — 2014 APA President Dr. Nadine Kaslow, 2015 President-Elect Dr. Susan McDaniel, and APA CEO Dr. Norman Anderson. The special committee will be assisted by APA General Counsel Nathalie Gilfoyle.

The independent reviewer will consider and report to the special committee as to whether APA colluded with the Bush administration, CIA or U.S. military to support torture during the war on terror. The review will include but not be limited to the following three issues: 1) whether APA supported the development or implementation of “enhanced” interrogation techniques that constituted torture; 2) whether changes to Section 1.02 of the APA Code of Ethics in 2002 or the formation and/or report of the APA Presidential Task Force on Psychological Ethics and National Security (PENS Task Force) were the product of collusion with the government to support torture or intended to support torture; and 3) whether any APA action related to torture was improperly influenced by government-related financial or policy considerations, including government grants, contracts or adoption of government policy regarding prescription privileges for psychologists serving in the military.

It is the intent of the APA Board that this review will be thorough and fully independent. The sole objective of the review is to ascertain the truth about the allegation described above following an independent review of all available evidence, wherever that evidence leads, without regard to whether the evidence or conclusions may be deemed favorable or unfavorable to APA. The independent reviewer will have full authority to conduct interviews of any present or former APA employee or member or any other person he deems necessary or appropriate. The independent reviewer will have access to all information and documents that he believes would assist in his work. APA staff and Board members have been instructed to fully cooperate in providing documents, electronic messages and information requested by the independent reviewer and to assist the reviewer in contacting former APA employees and others outside of APA who may have responsive information. The special committee will be responsible for providing the necessary support to the independent counsel in his conduct of the review, including resources, access to people and documents and other support necessary to ensure that the review is completed in a thorough and independent manner.

At the conclusion of the independent review, the independent counsel will present his final report to the special committee. The committee will review the report, formulate recommendations for responsive actions as needed and then transmit the independent reviewer's final report — without modification — together with the committee's recommendations to the APA Board. After reviewing the independent report, the APA Board will make it available — without modification — to the APA Council of Representatives, APA members and the public. In addition, the Board will take actions in response to the report and the recommendations of the special committee as it finds appropriate.

Anyone having information that they believe the independent reviewer should be aware of is invited to contact Mr. Hoffman at apareview@sidley.com. Information can also be shared with Mr. Hoffman via a special phone line — 312 456-8468.

Depending on access to information and persons needing to be interviewed, the review process is expected to be completed within the first quarter of 2015.

In the meantime, the APA Board again reiterates the Association's long-standing policy prohibiting any psychologist involvement in torture and cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. There are no exceptions to that policy. Anyone seeking information about prior statements and actions of the APA Board of Directors and Council of Representatives related to detainee welfare and psychologists' work in national security settings can review an extensive timeline at:

<http://www.apa.org/news/press/statements/interrogations.aspx>. Also available as part of this timeline is APA's comprehensive 2013 policy related to psychologists and national security. When Council adopted the 2013 policy, it also rescinded the PENS Task Force report.

(Rhea K. Farberman, APA Monitor Executive Editor provided the initial draft of this summary.)

Accommodations in High-Stakes Testing

by Laurie Mount Grimes, Ph.D., Director of Professional Affairs

Psychologists play a critical role in the application for accommodations on high stakes tests. High stakes testing refers to standardized entrance exams such as the ACT and SAT as well as graduation and professional school exams like the MCAT, LSAT, or GRE. For those psychologists who conduct psychoeducational assessment or other forms of psychological testing, chances are you have been asked to provide documentation to apply for accommodations on these standardized tests. The most common accommodation request is for extended time, though there are other options as well. The following points are taken from a session I attended at APA convention last summer in which the speakers were evaluators for testing companies for accommodations on high-stakes testing.

1. To test with or without medications? When planning your assessment, be clear on the ultimate purpose. Are you conducting an initial assessment to determine disability? If so, testing will need to be completed off medications since the purpose is to determine what the patient is like without mitigating measures like medications. Or are you testing a patient with a previously established diagnosis (e.g., ADHD)? If so, testing should be conducted with medications in order to determine disability because you need to evaluate the patient's day-to-day functioning and what s/he will be like on the day of testing.

2. Access vs. Success. Disability law is different from accommodation criteria on high-stakes testing. Evaluations performed for K-12 services are covered under the IDEIA, whereas accommodation requests in higher education and employment are under the ADAAA and are based on a different set of requirements. Though some accommodations in a school setting are geared toward helping a student achieve success in the classroom, the accommodations in standardized testing are concerned with gaining access to the test. Is there something that makes this student lack access to the test that other students have? Keep in mind: diagnosis does not equal disability.

3. Evaluators are not only looking at the scores in the report. They also scrutinize the psychologist! They take note of:

- a. competence – is this psychologist practicing in his/her area of expertise (e.g., child vs adult) (also, MD evals of ADHD based on checklist and 5 minute talk will not qualify)
- b. familiarity with the tests and data mining abilities. Knowledge of psychometrics and interpretation (i.e., noting patterns of deficits - not cherry picking scores or relying on one outlier score, and looking for pervasive impact – like processing speed does not just impact reading)
- c. professionalism – maintaining objectivity in presenting case, avoiding emotional rants or incensed statements about decisions, etc

4. Provide comprehensive application materials initially and on re-application, including:

- a. Comprehensive, current (within 3-5 years) psychoeducational report with the required testing determined by each testing agency, a DSM diagnosis justified by the data (avoid non-standard labels like 'spelling disorder' or NOS categories), and relevant behavior observations
- b. Thorough history including records of academic history, some evidence of early impairment, performance on previous standardized exams, special education services and treatments, detrimental impact of the condition on educational progress, impact of condition on major life activities (not just testing), prior psychoeducational evaluations

Evidence of current academic impairment like grades/transcripts and a description of current

- a. academic limitations via a personal letter, letter from school, teacher, tutor, etc

- b. Evidence of current substantial limitation (employment, social relationships)
- c. A report write-up that makes a clear connection between a specific processing deficit and areas of underachievement (for LD), timed and untimed measures in each academic area, and outlines a clear pattern of deficits (not just a few isolated areas of relative weakness). Scores that are inconsistent with the pattern must be addressed.
- d. Alternative explanations are addressed (e.g., emotional, ESL, motivation/effort factors)
- e. Thorough integration of all pieces of data and documents that leads to specific recommendations for accommodations. 'Extra time' or 'unlimited time' are not specific. Accommodations must be specific to the individual, not a condition (i.e., not all kids with ADHD have the same needs).
- f. Objective evidence that there is a substantial limitation compared to most people in the general population – not just relative to IQ and not a 'relative weakness.' There must be a substantial limitation in a major life activity and 'test taking' is not a major life activity. Is there evidence that learning in general is impaired or is it on certain minor or narrow tasks?
- g. Reasonable and appropriate accommodations. Remember, accommodations are to provide access not outcomes – that is, they are not to ensure a person finishes the test or has the best chance of success on the test.

Recognizing the different laws and requirements will help psychologists prepare their reports appropriately and may minimize denials. Questions? You can find me at Laurie@KPA.org.

Telepsychology's Access to Inter-jurisdictional Care

by Thomas W. Miller Ph.D. ABPP Chair, KBEP Telepsychology Subcommittee

For psychologists interested in providing psychological treatment across state and provincial lines, the ASPPB Mobility Program, Inter-jurisdictional Practice Certificate (IPC) is the vehicle for licensed psychologists using any form of telecommunication. The IPC grants temporary authority to practice based on notification to the licensing board of intention to practice temporarily, and verification of one's qualifications for such practice by ASPPB. The IPC allows psychologists to provide temporary psychological services in jurisdictions that accept the IPC for at least 30 work days (a day being defined as any part of a day in which psychological work is performed) per year without obtaining full licensure in that jurisdiction. In situations where the psychologist wishes to extend the duration of the work past 30 days, the jurisdiction would determine whether the temporary permission to practice could be extended or regular licensure would be required.

There is a DECLARATION OF INTENDED PRACTICE FORM to be completed and must be submitted to ASPPB and allows use of the IPC for jurisdictions participating in the program. Unless permitted by the visited jurisdiction's law, the IPC cannot be used to represent the psychologist as fully licensed to practice in the jurisdiction in which one wished to practice short-term. The jurisdiction may require the psychologist to apply for full licensure if the Psychology Board feels the services in their jurisdiction warrant such an action. Under no circumstances are IPC holders to conduct on-going part-time services on a regularly scheduled basis in a visited jurisdiction without obtaining regular licensure in that jurisdiction. The psychologist must acknowledge that the psychologist may be required to complete a criminal background check in order to provide services in the receiving jurisdiction.

Furthermore the IPC holder must abide by all state or provincial laws and regulations as they pertain to the practice of psychology and acknowledge that as an IPC holder will be under the disciplinary jurisdiction of both the board/college in which one is licensed/registered as well as the one in which the psychologist is working short-term. Finally the IPC holder must report to ASPPB any criminal, unethical or disciplinary actions involving the holder that arise after the application for the IPC is made. For Kentucky licensed psychologists, compliance with all aspects of KRS 319 is required.

During the 2014 Annual Convention, the Advocacy Committee administered a survey about various types of legislative advocacy for psychology, including questions about political giving and the possible formation of a Political Action Committee to support advocacy for the practice and science of psychology. Ethics Resource - The KPA Ethics Committee has developed a list of resources for KPA members aimed to help psychologists find resources about self-assessment, self-care and the development of skills, relationships, and personal qualities that will allow them to be less vulnerable to ethical breaches and "slippery slopes" in their professional careers and foster ethical awareness that leads to optimal practice. The posted resources define and discuss the stress—distress—impairment continuum, and the vulnerability at any point along the way to an ethical violation. They touch on topics such as risk factors, prevention of impairment, intervening with an impaired colleague, treatment options and the national movement toward establishing colleague assistance programs. Q&A on Current Issues in Ethics

by KPA Ethics Committee

Ethical Question:

The Ethics Committee was asked a question regarding whether or not psychologists can ethically bill using a diagnosis code which is not accurate, and in fact, has been ruled out. The Ethics Committee cannot fully address the legal aspects of this issue, as no committee member is an attorney, but at first glance, one might suggest that the practice is insurance fraud. APA Ethical Guideline 6.04(b) states, “Psychologists’ fee practices are consistent with law,” and if the practice is insurance fraud, then not only is it illegal, it is also unethical. However, consultation with an attorney versed in such matters would be in order to answer such a question.

If the practice is unethical, then the psychologist must ask what responsibility he/she has in response to knowing other professionals are actively participating in such a practice.

The following APA Ethical Guidelines are applicable:

1.04 Informal Resolution of Ethical Violations

When psychologists believe that there may have been an ethical violation by another psychologist, they attempt to resolve the issue by bringing it to the attention of that individual, if an informal resolution appears appropriate and the intervention does not violate any confidentiality rights that may be involved. (See also Standards 1.02, Conflicts Between Ethics and Law, Regulations, or Other Governing Legal Authority, and 1.03, Conflicts Between Ethics and Organizational Demands.)

1.05 Reporting Ethical Violations

If an apparent ethical violation has substantially harmed or is likely to substantially harm a person or organization and is not appropriate for informal resolution under Standard 1.04, Informal Resolution of Ethical Violations, or is not resolved properly in that fashion, psychologists take further action appropriate to the situation. Such action might include referral to state or national committees on professional ethics, to state licensing boards or to the appropriate institutional authorities. This standard does not apply when an intervention would violate confidentiality rights or when psychologists have been retained to review the work of another psychologist whose professional conduct is in question. (See also Standard 1.02, Conflicts Between Ethics and Law, Regulations, or Other Governing Legal Authority.)
